IRISH MANSION HOUSE
INVASION AIMED AT
SINN FEIN LEADERS

Dublin, Friday, May 9.—The military occupation of the Mansion house here, which was effected by soldiers and police this afternoon, was not aimed at the suppression of the Irish parliament, whose sessions are held there, but was intended to bring about the arrest of Robert Barton and J. J. Walsh, Sinn Fein members of parliament, and others who had recently escaped from Mountjoy prison and were believed to be in the building.

Davison street, on which the Mansion house stands and the adjacent streets were cleared of people and tramway traffic was suspended.

Parliament, which had met earlier in the day, had adjourned, but the building was to be used in the evening for a reception by the lord mayor to Frank J. Walsh, Michael F. Ryan and Edward F. Dunne, the visiting representatives of Irish societies of America.

The troops remained in the structure nearly two hours by which time the lord mayor's guests for the reception were arriving. These guests were held up outside the cordon of troops with machine guns which had been thrown about the building.

Eventually the troops were withdrawn without having captured the men who were sought.

A special session of the Sinn Fein party held today, a reception was accorded the delegates from the Irish societies in America. Prof. Edward F. De Valera, the Sinn Fein leader, declared in speaking that "Ireland will never be cheated by England" and expressed cordial thanks to the delegates for "coming to defend the right."

PEACE
WAR

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Germany, protesting that the terms of the peace are "unbearable" and "unpractical" will make a counter proposal for a peace of right on the basis of a lasting peace of the nations.

Thus says a proclamation to the German people issued by President Ebert.

The German national assembly has been called to meet in Berlin Monday and it is probable formal consideration of the peace terms will begin tonight.

Advices from Paris indicate that a definite settlement of the question raised by Italy and Jugoslavia over the disposition of Trieste has not been reached. It is said the plan adopted for the government of the Saar region which for 15 years prior to a plebiscite, will be administered by a commission under the supervision of the Council of Four in the case of France.

Chancellor Renner of German-Austria will be a delegate to rectify the treaty between the allies and his country. In an address Thursday he indicated in accepting his nomination as a delegate that he had given up hope for the union of Germany and German-Austria.

It is understood in Paris that the Chinese delegates will refuse to sign the treaty if they do not receive from the Council of Four a written agreement that Japan will restore the Shantung peninsula and Kiau Chau to China.

Dispatches from Paris state that President Wilson will be submitting to the United States senate the proposed understanding with France by which this country would send troops to France if that country is attacked by Germany. The president's letter he wrote to Premier Clemenceau on the subject. Whether a treaty is ultimately framed will depend upon the senate.

ASSEMBLY TO MEET;
SEPARATION TERMS SET;
DEBT CLAUSE CENSUREDSaloon Men
Not Worried
About July 1

What are Janesville saloonkeepers going to do after July 1? That question probably has been asked hundreds of times during the past two months and the saloon owners simply smile and announce that they are still going to operate saloons.

Local liquor dealers are not the least bit worried regarding the bone dry edict which goes into effect July 1, according to their statements. They claim that President Wilson will withdraw the order before the time arrives and the saloons will continue to do business.

Every owner of a saloon in Janesville is confident that his place of business will still be operating after the first of July.

Some saloonkeepers are planning for other lines of business but the majority of them assert that they are not worrying and are not even thinking about the much talked of July 1.

Local saloonkeepers were smiling today as a result of the prohibition bill which was killed in the assembly at Madison Thursday night after a debate lasting nearly four hours.

Assemblyman Thomas Nolan of this city was instrumental in killing the bill, and Janesville saloonkeepers were in Madison during the fight claim that the local assemblyman certainly did assuage the dry leaders.

"I am sick and tired of seeing you dry leaders hanging around here and I am sure you would not even let us breathe if you could help it, and I want you to understand that I don't drink either," Mr. Nolan said in addressing the assembly Thursday evening.

The bill which was killed called for an appropriation of $25,000 and the formation of a committee to have power to search and seize during the dry period.

"We are not troubling ourselves about the first of July," Thomas Keigley, secretary of the Janesville Saloonkeepers' association, said this morning when asked what the association was doing regarding the impending dry period.

Mr. Keigley attended the hearing at Madison on Thursday and it was the consensus of opinion among the liquor men from all parts of the state that the Wilson law would be repealed before July 1.

No Steps Taken.
Mr. McKeligue stated that no steps had been taken by the local saloonkeepers relative to the saloons going out of business and he added that if the saloons did not go out on that date that he thought they would stay regardless of the federal dry amendment.

He has made no plans for entering any other business and doesn't think that any other Janesville liquor dealer has.

Thomas Keigley also stated that the same saloonkeepers who had been in the McNichols hotel company stated that he had not given the matter serious thought as yet.

Mr. Keigley also stated that he and John Flannery had no plans for entering any other business ventures after the date set for the closing of the saloons.

William Keigley, manager of the Myers hotel, claims that he has several plans in mind if the saloons go out, but like the rest he is not speaking a great deal of the matter.

Plans New Business.
Anton J. Hanauke, who operates a saloon on West Milwaukee street, stated that he had made plans for other business but he did not care to make an announcement until he was sure that his place of business would be closed.

Mr. McKeligue also stated that he had received word from the east that one of the largest hotel owners in New York was one of the very few saloonkeepers who had stayed in the Wilson during his brief stay in the city.

Charles Evers, manager of the other saloons in Janesville, stated that he was willing to wager $10,000 that the saloons will not close July 1.

"INALIENABLE" SEPARATION IS PROVISION OF TREATY.

DEBT LENIENCY IS CONDEMNED

France Resents Easy Money, Obligations Placed on ENEMY.

Paris, May 10.—The German cabinet council has decided on the wording of a note that Germany will present without delay to the allies, according to a dispatch. The note, it is added, may be made public today.

Germany's reply will be a proposal "for a peace of right on the basis of a lasting peace of the nations," according to a Zurich dispatch. The man people issued by President Ebert. The part of the German treaty which has not yet been made public contains a provision that German-Austria's separation from Germany shall be "inalienable" unless approved by the council of the league of nations. The use of the word "inalienable" is for the purpose of settling the present for a long period.

National Assembly Monday.
Berlin, Friday, May 9.—Philipp Scheidemann, the German chancellor, will be at the opening of the national assembly, Monday, to explain in detail the government's viewpoint on the peace terms, according to Zeitung Am Mittag.

Expect Answer in Week.
Paris, May 10.—President Wilson expressed the belief today that nothing would be heard from the German plenipotentiaries after a week. The German plenipotentiaries had been in Paris since last night in preparing counter proposals.

Financial Clauses Discussed.
The financial clauses of the peace treaty continue to be the most discussed section of the document and are almost universally condemned by the commentators for not making Germany responsible for the repayment of the entire cost of the war and for leaving France with a burden placed at 170 billion francs.

The democratic socialist official organ says it is a "bourgeois capitalist" policy to exact such a heavy burden from France. It will consider it a criminal breach of a sworn word and an outrage on morals and right.

The naval terms of the treaty with Austria as now completed, are far more stringent than the naval terms with Germany as the Austrian navy is completely destroyed. The only craft of any kind which the terms give to Austria are those for use on the Danube.

The Austrian peace delegates will leave Vienna Monday and reach Paris probably Wednesday, the French foreign office was advised today.

The German plenipotentiaries are at present in Berlin and are expected to return to Berlin and consult their government if they desire so to do, it is reported in conference circles. Such a move, it is said, would not mean the break off of negotiations.

Refused Interview.
Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, German foreign minister and chairman of the peace delegation, tried to obtain a personal interview with President Wilson Friday, but was refused, according to L. Intriguant.

It is understood the Council of Four today discussed the entire peace treaty and what steps should be taken in that event.

Say Wilson Wavers.
Berlin, Friday, May 9.—The Imperial and Prussian governments, in a joint proclamation to eastern Germany, assuring that the government will not be deterred by the territorial changes proposed in the treaty of peace.

The Lokai Anzeiger states that a note has been sent to the entire nations requesting that new peace negotiations be begun and that German prisoners of war be immediately released. Mass meetings throughout the country have been arranged for Tuesday by the social democratic party to protest the peace clause.

Austrian Death Ruel Sounds.
Vienna, Thursday, May 8.—The death knell of old Austria was sounded to parliament when Chancellor Renner, in accepting the coming on as a peace delegate, said he relinquished all hopes for a fusion with Germany.

"The Austrian people must suffer for the mistakes of their rulers," he said. "We never wanted the war and we were not guilty of bringing it about. I will do my best to secure better times for ourselves."

Paris, Friday, May 9.—The council of Foreign Ministers this afternoon fixed the boundaries between Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia and made progress toward the adjustment of new Rumania boundaries. The question of lifting the blockade against Hungary was referred the special economic council for action.

The council also discussed how to feed the population of Riga and how to prevent supplies from falling into the hands of the bolsheviks.

Representatives of Belgium and Holland will be heard by the council, May 19, concerning the abrogation of the treaty of 1839.

EMPLOYMENT, BONUS,
QUESTION BEFORE VETS

St. Louis, May 10.—Before the American legion today in the final session, whether of municipal government, a dozen or more resolutions all designed to aid the men who served in the military or naval service of the government and of their dependents.

Foremost among these were questions concerning employment and of obtaining a bonus of six months pay for each year of service.

The employment resolution called on congress to give federal aid to any government, whether of municipal, state, or national character which will increase opportunities for employment.

The convention yesterday was thrown almost into a riot by a speech of Col. J. E. Herbert of Massachusetts, who when Chicago was proposed as the scene of the next convention declared the soldiers and sailors could not go to Chicago until they secured an American for mayor.

Minneapolis finally was chosen for the next convention.

Success of Loan Hangs in Balance

Washington, May 10.—The success of the last popular American war loan was in the balance today. Up to a late hour tonight banks will accept subscriptions and then they will take 10 days to report their sales.

The day's success will not be known until some time after May 20.

The nation started its final day's drive with $3,314,870,000 already pledged and clinched with initial payments of subscribers.

Official subscriptions to the Victory Liberty loan shortly before noon today approximated $3,500,000,000. A statement by the treasury said:

"Reports of unreported subscriptions indicated that the country's total was greatly above the official showing."

Belgium Protests Use of New German Flag

Paris, Friday, May 9.—Belgium has protested to the entente allies powers against the proposed use of the German republic of a red, yellow and black flag which is almost identical with that of Belgium.

COUNTY WAREHOUSE BILL KILLED; KNAPPE MEASURE DEFEATED

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, May 10.—The assembly has killed the bill providing for special distribution warehouses to be operated by the counties. The measure proposed that counties be permitted to make appropriations of not to exceed $10,000 for the establishment of such warehouses. The county would be permitted to make an additional appropriation of $10,000 to operate the warehouse.

The Knappe bill for the abolition of trade centers and embargoing many of the provisions of the Wilcox bill, which was killed in the upper house three weeks ago, was defeated in the assembly by a vote of 41 to 21. The house refused to reconsider the vote by which it killed the Klein bill, defining certain places where women may not be employed. This measure was killed in the house, after an amendment of the author, after an amendment had been incorporated providing that women should be allowed to handle 50 pound weights, and after hotels and canneries had been excepted from the provisions of the measure. Later it was decided by the author that perhaps some of the objectionable features of the bill might be removed if a motion for reconsideration were offered. All bills relating to the legislature have been placed on next Thursday's calendar in the house. There are three bills. The Skogmo bill has already passed the senate. The second bill was drafted by the Wisconsin Society of Equity and was offered by Assemblyman J. C. Hanson. A third bill has been offered by the assembly committee on agriculture and is sometimes known as the Bartingale bill.

The fight will be made over the Bartingale bill and the measure which has already passed the senate. It is believed that the session Thursday will solve the problem. The bills will be taken up as a special order at 9:30 Thursday morning.

Concurrence was given in the house to a resolution which refers to a vote of the people at the November election in 1920, the question of allowing the legislature to fix the salary of members of the legislature. The measure was originally planned to have a Monday session in the house so many bills were cleared out of the way last week, that it was possible to adjourn until Tuesday. More work has been done during the past week in passing on bills than in a month previous.

MAIL SERVICE WITH OCCUPIED GERMANY HAS BEEN RESUMED

Mail service with German territory now occupied by allied troops has been resumed, according to an announcement by Postmaster J. J. Cunningham this morning. Mr. Cunningham stated that he had just received word from Washington that mail classes for parcels of Germany now in the hands of the allied troops would be acceptable.

A complete list of the cities and towns for which mail can be accepted can be found at the postoffice and includes the cities of Berg, Berghelm, Beekheim, Bonn, Bollbratzen, Zuerich, Muhlheim, Weisdorf, Hiltenthal, Bendorf, Hahn, Coblenz, Hiltenthal, Fran, Zill, Remagen, and Corolstein.

Mr. Cunningham stated that letters for the above named cities would be accepted and anyone desiring to send letters to other places in Germany should call at the postoffice where a complete list of the places where letters can be sent can be had.

Articles conforming to the postal union rates, conditions and classification now being sent to Bulgaria through France and England. Mr. Cunningham said. No parcel post for Bulgaria will be accepted and merchandise for that country regardless of the fact that it is sent at the letter rate will not be acceptable.

"Shortly after the outbreak of war," Postmaster Cunningham said, "it was found that Denmark, Sweden and The Netherlands was playing an important part in mail for Germany. The mail was being relayed through these countries and then sent to Germany, and as a result mail service with these places was suspended."

"This morning I received word that the service between The Netherlands, Sweden and Denmark would be resumed immediately," Mr. Cunningham said.

NOLAN DENIES HE IS CANDIDATE FOR STATE EXECUTIVE

"I am not a candidate for governor or any other political office," Assemblyman Thomas Nolan said today when he arrived from Madison. Mr. Nolan stated that although he had been told that he was being mentioned as a candidate for governor he had not been approached by anyone relative to the matter and he had not even given it serious thought.

Reports received from Madison and acknowledged by Mr. Nolan, claim that several of the assemblymen held a meeting at the Park hotel after the session and discussed the possibility of endorsing a candidate for governor. Mr. Nolan said he was not present at the meeting and all declared that they would support the Janesville man in the next gubernatorial election.

"There will be no assemblyman candidates on the republican ticket at the next primary election for governor," Mr. Nolan said. He stated that Lieutenant Governor Hanson was a candidate for the office and Lawrence Whitteit is being prominently mentioned, although he asserts that he will not be a candidate.

JUNIOR PROM IS FESTIVAL SCENE IN EVANSVILLE

Evansville, May 10.—After weeks of thorough preparation and planning the evening of May 9 arrived, and with it the long anticipated Junior Prom. The event was a grand success, a moonlight night, excellent music, and the exuberance of youth. For the past week the decorating committee has been busy at Fisher's hall transforming its bareness to a bower of beauty, and the finished result was shown last evening. The color scheme was gold and white, the senior class color, and everywhere they were in evidence.

Many unique features of decoration were used. Large bowl-shaped, gold-colored pasted-on decorations of white and gold flowers attached were hung beneath each electric bulb in the ceiling. These were the only decorations used in the center of the hall. At an window, white tissue curtains draped of white and gold crepe paper stands covering the entire length of the windows and draped back at each side. At the north end of the hall, a large, white, star-shaped, paper stand, also made of the crepe paper stands, and across each corner settees were placed. Boughs covered with gold and white flowers were used across the smaller room adjoining a long table decorated with white and gold, and with huge bowls of roses, held the punch bowl. Lattice work was used for the refreshment table. Lattice work covered with small paper flowers. Here also were found card tables for those who wished to play cards.

Many clever ideas were used for the dances—favors of gay caps of every hue for the dances, confetti, etc., were given during the evening. Thompson's orchestra, Madison, furnished the music.

COURT FINES WOMAN ARRESTED BY MAYOR; SECOND IS "CHASED"

The first arrest of women in the police department and city hall vice clean-up occurred last night when Mayor Thomas E. Welsh took into custody and to the station one for drunkenness, and Patrolman Alonzo Cain arrested a second at the C. and N. W. depot for "mashing."

In police court this morning, Della Harris, the mayor's prisoner, pleaded guilty to intoxication, drew a $25 fine and costs or the alternate of 30 days in jail. Up to noon the woman was engaged in making unsuccessful attempts to have friends pay her fine.

Mrs. Helen Bradley, a former Janesville woman, was the one arrested at the railway station. Snatched from the "depths below," at the city hall before she was brought before Judge Harry L. Maxfield, tract Attorney Daniel G. Dunneville, who had been engaged by the woman, was solicited, and firing with soldiers at the depot, and it was further alleged that she had been hanging around the two passenger stations for several days.

Mrs. Bradley told the court she was here from Minneapolis, where she said she ran a grocery store, on business, but promised to finish it up rapidly when she chose to get out of Janesville and stay out instead of going to jail for a year. Judge Maxfield, with the consent of the district attorney, gave her this choice.

As on the past several days fines of $25 and costs or 30 days in jail today featured the appearance of men charged with drunkenness. Frank Chisler, Janesville; Thomas Hardy, Footville, and Gust Nelson, Orfordville, paid fines. Elliott "Cap" Collier was let down with a fine of $5 and costs or 7 days.

AN IMPORTANT FACTOR IN CUTTING SHOE EXPENSE

"Many months of comfort at little expense" is the way Charles A. Pearson of San Diego, California, sums up his experience with Neolin Soles. Mr. Pearson had two pairs of shoes resoled with Neolin Soles, and after wearing them for twenty months writes "I will have to get new shoes sometime, but so far as the soles are concerned, that time seems as far distant as when they were new."

This is typical of the experience millions are having with Neolin Soles. Created by Science to be durable, flexible and waterproof, these soles are an important factor in cutting shoe expense. You can get them on new shoes for the whole family, and for re-soling. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear all other heels.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The Literary Digest of this date discusses the devoted men and women who hold the destinies of our children in their hands—the school teachers. It is a plea for justice for the foster parents of our offspring. It follows:

"It is strange that the generous-hearted American people, who poured out their riches so prodigally in response to every patriotic, every charitable appeal, and who accorded such enthusiastic and liberal support to every measure and to every group that helped win the war, should have neglected to properly encourage and reward the services of one of the noblest professions in the field of human activities—a profession that in lofty ideals, in unselfish principles, in sacred responsibilities, stands side by side with the ministry of the Gospel itself.

"We wish to bespeak, with whatever power and authority we may have and with such words as may be granted to us, some measure of consideration for the foster-fathers and mothers of our children—the school-teachers of the United States of America.

"There is no class of workers of which we demand so much. We commit into their keeping the minds, the bodies, and the very souls of our children in the tender and formative years of their lives, and they, receiving these children, can indeed be said to hold in the hollow of their hands the future of America. We expect these devoted men and women to watch over and care for our sons and daughters as though they were their very own, to drill them in the arts and sciences, to train them for business and for citizenship, to instruct them in manners and in morals, to do for them those things which we would do had we the training and the leisure.

"No class has assumed so heavy, so trying a burden and a responsibility with such willingness as these consecrated men and women. No class has performed their increasingly heavy tasks more devotedly, more conscientiously, and with less thought of self. No class served their country more wholeheartedly, more loyally, during the trying and tempestuous times of war, day by day helping the young people, and through the children the parents, to see the struggle in its true light, thus securing the cooperation of the community in every measure undertaken by the Government to win the war.

"Truly they have made the nation their everlasting debtor. Truly had they not done their work so well this republic would not outlast the span of a generation.

"What then have the teachers received at our hands in return? They have received little of honor and somewhat less of pay. Other classes have prospered; other classes through powerful organizations have secured generous wages. The teachers have no spokesman, however, to demand even the simple justice of a living wage, so to them we give their petty prewar pittance, so meager, so pitifully inadequate, that it places a burning brand of shame and disgrace upon this nation.

"The men and women who are making the Americans of tomorrow are being treated with less consideration than the janitors who sweep out the buildings in which they are employed; they are earning on the average, less than the wages given to the scrub-women employed in the public buildings of the United States Government. Normal-school graduates receive less salary than street-sweepers; high-school principals and superintendents less than section foremen; country school teachers less for instructing the farmer's children than he pays his hired man to feed his hogs.

"In a certain town of Illinois, for instance, the average wages of fifteen miners for one month was $217, while the average monthly salary of fifteen teachers in the same town was $55. In another town a miner, who, by the way, was an enemy alien, drew more than $2,700 last year, while the salary of the high-school principal in the same town was $765. We welcome with all our hearts the long-looked-for recognition that is being given to the man who works with his hands. We believe that this same working-man will be the first to join with us in asking better pay for those who teach his children.

"No wonder there are fifty thousand vacancies in the teaching forces of the schools. No wonder the ranks are being filled with weak men and with immature women who merely use the profession as a stepping-stone to something better. No wonder there are thirty thousand teachers in the United States who have had no schooling beyond the eighth-grade. Small wonder, indeed, that seven million of our school-children are being trained by teachers, mere boys and girls themselves, who have had no professional education whatever.

"When we consider that the 740,000 teachers of America are paid an average salary of $630 a year; when, moreover, we consider the fact that living costs have actually advanced 103 percent since the beginning of the war, thereby cutting the buying-power of these insignificant salaries in half, we can easily determine that only a fool or a martyr would choose teaching as a profession, or would long remain in it unless these terrible conditions were swiftly remedied.

"What a crime is this! What an indictment! What an unpardonable sin at the doors of an enlightened people who now find themselves at the head and forefront of the democracies of the world! How can we better prepare for the great undertakings of reconstruction than by setting ourselves immediately to remedying this perilous condition. In these trying and chaotic times when the world is beset by unrest, by anarchy, by revolution, by the devil's brood of appalling evils that follow in the train of war, we must make sure that the foundations of our republic are set on a rock that it may stand against the flood.

"The peace and security of the world of the future will be in the safe keeping of the generation now in our schools. These boys and girls must 'weave up the raveled sleeve' of civilization. Their hands must minister to the wounds of the nations. Their minds must meet and solve the difficult and crucial problems that will be their inheritance. Their hearts must be so imbued with the horrors of war and with the poverty and anguish that inevitably follow in its wake that they in their time will enter upon it only as a last resort in national self-defense or in support of some great principle of humanity.

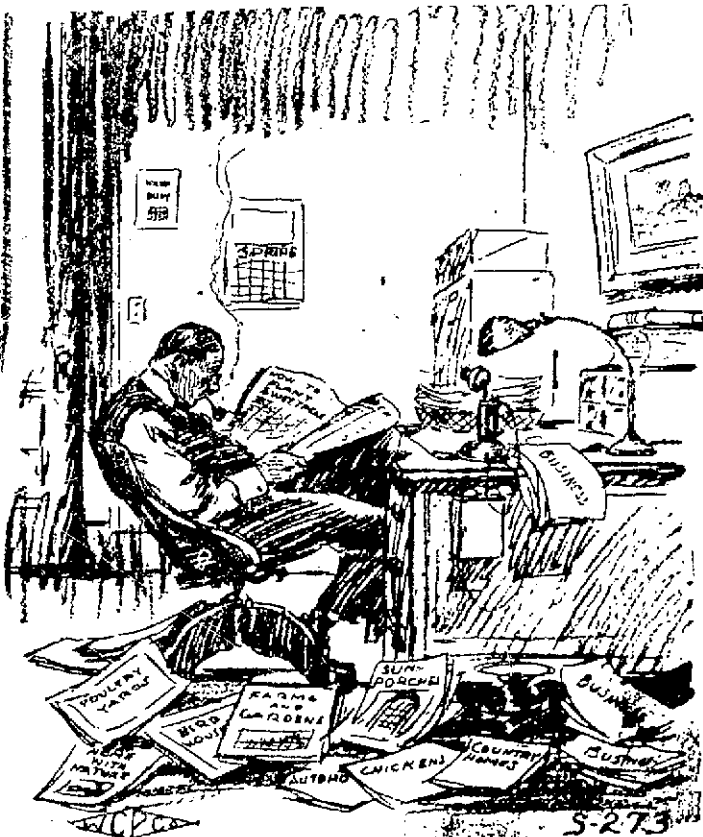

"Never has there been a more urgent need for high-minded, great-hearted, splendidly trained, 100 percent American instructors to drive home the vital lessons that these times hold. Never has the future of the nation been so clearly committed into the hands of the teachers. And yet thousands of men and women of ability who would prefer to teach are reluctantly leaving their chosen calling, forced by the hard necessities of their very existence.

"The teachers ask no largess at the hands of fortune. They enter their profession for service, not riches. But they invest years and money in preparation for their life-work and the knowledge they gain is shared with others who themselves use it to their own profit. Teachers, then, by every right and in all justice expect a return that will permit them and their dependents to live decently and in comfort.

"In every community reached by The Literary Digest there are readers of foresight, of vision, broad-minded men and thoughtful women who will see—nay, perhaps have long since seen—the critical and compelling importance of this problem. We are directing this appeal to them. We urge them to compare the salaries of their teachers with the wages of those who are doing work of equal value. There will be a challenge in the facts that will stir the community to action.

"Let each community invest in schools so that it may thereby invest in a trained manhood and womanhood that can play their part in the great period of rebuilding and reconstruction that lies before us. Let each community set for its goal, as far as is practicable, a minimum wage of at least $1,000 a year for the teachers of America. This would cost the nation perhaps as much as we spent so gloriously in but one week of the Great War.

"We are not pleading merely for the welfare of some single profession; we are not pleading for a special class; we are pleading for America: for her larger, her brighter her richer future, for the fulfillment of her glorious promise. We are pleading for a coming race of men and women who shall be qualified to make complete the work of our forefathers who founded this nation and dedicated it to liberty, and who will bring to full fruition the new victories that we have won in freedom's cause. We are pleading for a wider teaching of the principles, the purposes, and the ideals of this nation that all men shall know her meaning and shall have equal access to her opportunities; that the light of Americanism will so shine that it will flood every home, every heart, in our great land."

THE SIMPLER SUCCESS.

I'm not denying that it's fine
To claim the gold that's in a mine
For make some needed thing so well
That for a profit it will sell.
In every sort of world success
There lies a lot of happiness.
But this is something that I know
It's fun to see the roses grow.

There are successes other than
The sort which brings great wealth to man;
Not at the joy or all delight
Are born of feats of skill and might,
And some who never rise to claim
The splendor of undying fame
Have found success in other ways
And lived their share of happy days.

Some find their happiness in gold,
And some in deeds of conquest bold;
Some find it in the orchard near;
Some in the fellowship of trees;
Some in the blossoms of the rose
Attain the joy the rich man knows,
And by that road to happiness
Achieve the summit of success.

Who breaks the ground with spade
and hoe
Is thrilled to see the roses grow;
To him the tender buds of spring
Unfold delight and gladness bring,
And in the beauty blooming there
He's well repaid for all his care.
Success is not alone in gold,
Sometimes in humble things it's told.

LAKOTA CLUB SHOW AT APOLLO, MONDAY

The annual theatrical of the Lakota club, abandoned for the past two years because of the war, will take on some of the famous old aspects of this organization's productions at the Apollo Monday night when the club stages its 1919 show. Two evening shows and a children's matinee at 4:15 will be given.

Even now there are many Lakotas still in the service, and the long delay in the return home of members disrupted all plans for a revival of the rip-roarin' funny minstrels so successfully played by the club with its world of talent and equally successful world of hard work made months ago were for a big show again this year but it was necessary to abandon these with the failure of talent to return from the war.

Repeated requests to the club that it arrange for a theatrical, after all plans had been abandoned, resulted in decision to put on a program at the Apollo. Manager James Zanias, a Lakota, was heartily in favor of the club doing something this year and donated the theatre for the afternoon and evening.

Members of committees in charge of arrangements with the co-operation of Manager Zanias have secured a seven-reel picture and planned for a number of specialty acts. Roy Ryan, Robert Daily, Howard Clithero, Dr. E. P. Richards, Earl Fuzzell and other talent of the club are on the program.

Manager Zanias has reported that a number of requests for certain vocal numbers have been received. General sentiment seems to point to Mr. Fuzzell having to sing his famous, "Where was Moses When the Light Went Out." Mr. Clithero, the well-known, "He Kissed Her on the Garage," and Dr. Richards, "On the Road to Mandalay" all hits of the last minstrel of the Lakotas.

THE GIRL WHO HAD NO GOD

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Author of "The Man in Lower Ten," etc.

"Nice room," he said. "But a jolly lot of good it does the old gentleman now! Nice little girl downstairs, too. I've seen that chap in the hall somewhere."

The coroner drew the sheet over old Hilary's peaceful face.

"The preacher? They all look alike. It's the vest and the collar."

"The other man, with the accent, German, I take it, or—Russian."

Boroday was waiting for them at the foot of the staircase. In the library was a tray, with drinks and sandwiches. The shades had been lowered.

The chief ate and drank. And as often as he raised his glass he looked at the Russian over it. At last:

"Haven't we met somewhere, Mr. Boroday?"

"Boroday. I rather think not."

"You remind me of someone—I'll place you, or the person you resemble."

"You Have Never Been in St. Louis?"

pretty soon. I have a slow mind. It's like an Alredead dog; it's a long time getting started, but when it begins it hangs on like the devil."

The drinks were cold, and the house cool. The prospect of starting out in the heat and dust did not allure the two men. Sitting there at his ease, the chief ran over the points of the outrage.

"In several ways," he observed comfortably, the affair resembles one that happened in St. Louis several years ago. There's the same quality of audacity—and there are other things."

Quite suddenly a light came into his eyes.

"Ah!" he said, bending forward toward Boroday. "I told you I'd get it. It was in St. Louis I saw you!"

Their glances clashed, the chief's intent, the Russian's cool, amused.

"The dog," said Boroday, "holds on well, but—to the wrong throat."

"You have never been in St. Louis?"

"Never."

CHAPTER IV.

Elinor lived alone after the funeral. Henriette, who had now a chance to practice her favorite view of thrift, was for sending away the other servants.

"I can manage," she said. "For all you eat."

But Elinor protested.

"I shall want to keep up the Saturday dinners. Let things stay as they are for a time."

It had been old Hilary's custom to have such members of the band as were available dine with him of a Saturday.

Henriette raised her hands.

"Things are changed," she cried. "You are alone here now. To have those four men—"

"That is better than having one man, Henriette."

So Elinor had her way. The Saturday dinners were resumed early in September. Boroday coming with infinite caution from his cheap boarding-house in the South side, Talbot and Lehighbridge from the bachelor apartment they rented together. Walter Huff was late.

"I had to be careful," he told Boroday, aside. "They've got wind of something. I don't know what. My room was searched today."

Boroday swore through his beard.

"Then why did you come here?" he demanded. Young Huff laughed, glanced at Elinor, and back impudently at the Russian.

"You know why I came," he said, in high good humor. "But I was careful. It's all right."

Old Hilary's chair had been placed by Elinor's order. She had borne up well the last month, was rather more stouter, certainly more appealing. The quality of vivaciousness was more apparent than ever from her mouth. Huff, sitting across, hardly took his eyes from her. He was young, and women had had no place until now in his active, unscrupulous life. But Elinor held him in the palm of her small hand.

"They missed old Hilary, his saturnine humor, his beetling gray brows, and taciturn was telling on them. They were growing restive. Boroday, advising caution in view of what he knew, felt the disaffection among the younger men."

It was Lehighbridge, who, waiting until the servants had withdrawn, rosy and glanced around the table.

PETEY DINK—MAYBE MABEL THOUGHT PETEY WAS GOING TO SPRING SOME SCANDINAVIAN.

"It seems to me," he began, "that we have a lot to decide tonight. I've been thinking about it ever since—for some time. The first thing, of course, is whether we are going to hang together or not."

Talbot had rather a weird sense of humor. He suggested that the word "hang" be changed to "remain."

"We've been doing well. We'll do it right again, too, as soon as this thing blows over. It was unlucky, but we've been pretty fortunate. Now we can do one of two things. For Elinor's sake, I suggest the first."

"And that is—"

Elinor's voice was instantly still.

"Send Boroday to Paris to dispose of your jewels. Then get a conservative lawyer to invest the money."

"And after that?"

"Forget you ever knew any of us."

Huff, across the table from her, went white, but said nothing.

"You said there was an alternative?"

Elinor was white, too. The room was profoundly still.

"To keep on as we are at present, with you, Elinor, acting in your father's stead, receiving and transmitting messages, and—keeping the vault in charge."

Boroday was on his feet in a moment, protesting. He would take the jewels and send them abroad. It was risky, but it could be done. But this outrageous arrangement that had been suggested—

"What we are, we are by choice," he finished. "You have never had a choice, and now it is given to you. For God's sake, child, go away now, while you may."

Elinor's reply, when it came, was unanswerable.

"Where could I go? I know in all the world only you four, and old Henriette, and a governess of mine who has gone into a convent in France. I shall stay here with you all."

So it was settled.

That was an eventful evening, with Elinor, misty-eyed, moving into her father's chair at the table, and the band seeing the simple oath of allegiance which held them together. And when they had moved from the dining room, Walter Huff, following Elinor out onto the terrace, told her he loved her.

The starlight above, and these near-ignores that outlined the streets below, threw a soft radiance over her. She was dressed in white; old Hilary had disliked mourning garments. Elinor was looking down into the village. The great spire of Saint Jude's towered above the town. Huff, young and ardent, thrilled to the girl's presence close beside him.

"You are very aloof tonight," he said. She smiled up at him.

"Not that surely. I was only thinking."

"Of what?"

"Of different things—of the people down there in their houses—of their lives, the things they believe; of what they are, narrow, but I wonder, after all, if you and I, who believe none of those things, are not the narrow ones."

Huff was not subtle. Possibly he would not have understood, had not the faint Jude's chimes rung just then.

"Symbols like that seem to mean so much to them," said Elinor, and fell silent.

In the warm silence, Huff felt for and found her hand.

"At this time, when I couldn't see you," he said instead, "I've been thinking of you here alone, and in trouble. Sometimes I thought I couldn't stand it, that I'd have to come out and see you, if only for five minutes."

"I have always been more or less lonely. Sometimes I think I had been sent away to school, had known other girls. It would have been better. I have never had any friends—except you, and the others."

Huff released her hand and faced her.

"I don't want to be your friend, Elinor. I want to be much more."

She was rather shocked at first. She stood, looking up at him, her lips slightly parted.

"You—you—want—"

"I love you. I want you to marry me, Elinor."

There was no doubt of the boy's sincerity. It rang true. He stood with his arms out, and after a moment she went into them. Except for the father who had gone, this was the first love that had come into her life. She took that hand that had been so kind to her, and she kissed it. Huff, sitting across, hardly took his eyes from her. He was young, and women had had no place until now in his active, unscrupulous life. But Elinor held him in the palm of her small hand.

"They missed old Hilary, his saturnine humor, his beetling gray brows, and taciturn was telling on them. They were growing restive. Boroday, advising caution in view of what he knew, felt the disaffection among the younger men."

It was Lehighbridge, who, waiting until the servants had withdrawn, rosy and glanced around the table.

town after dusk, on his way in his car to a dance or dinner at the country club, and taking him back the same way.

And the boy's infatuation for Elinor grew and thrived on those late summer meetings. Her sweetness and elusiveness maddened him. Sometimes he thought her never so far from him as when she was in his arms.

"Do you love me?" he would demand hoarsely.

"I think so. I know I want you to love me."

And he had to be content with this.

On the evenings when she was alone Elinor sat in her arbor and watched the road up the hill. Ward had called twice, and each time she had been out on the long rumbles she took almost daily. After his second visit, she stayed in the house for days, expecting him. But he did not come again.

She was not in love with Ward, just as she was not in love with Walter Huff. But the clergyman represented, in her strange and lonely life, something new and different. He typified all that she had never known. He was the priest, rather than the man to her at first. The time was coming when he would be man only, and after that—

Late in September Boroday was arrested. As a matter of fact the police could prove nothing, but the chief had a long talk with the Russian. It was the Agraria affair, of course. The chief had recognized him. But so firmly had old Hilary's respectability been rooted in the public mind that the chief connected Boroday only casually with him.

"You know that I cannot prove this thing on you," he said, "but you know also perfectly well that I can fix you to the tune of about ten years."

"Perfectly correct in both instances," said Boroday. "You cannot prove any thing and you can send me up. What is it you want?"

"I want the members of that band of yours," said the chief. "And I want your headquarters. You people have been playing hell in this county long enough; the newspapers are laughing at us. Sooner or later, we'll get you and get you all. Make it sooner and we'll let you off easy."

"How much time will you give me?"

The chief offered twenty-four hours and Boroday took it. At the end of that time he reported.

"I guess I'll take what's coming to me," he said. "You can fix it any way you like."

It was a bitter disappointment to the police.

Dinner Stories

"I thought you said the vest you sold me last week would not shrink," cried the indignant customer as he stalked wrathfully into the haberdashery shop.

"Quite right sir," said the clerk, "if it should shrink all you have to do is to hand it back to us and we will give you a new one."

"That's just what I meant to do," snapped the customer. "But I was caught in the rain last night and now I can't get the beastly thing off!"

When Stephen Crane was reporting the Greco-Turkish war he had occasion to write of a battle in which the Turks turned and fled before the energy. Crane watched with disgust the Turkish censor tearing down his manuscript, and finally that worthy came to the word "routed."

"This won't do," he said; "we must have a euphemism here. What would you suggest?"

"If I were you," said Crane sarcastically, "I'd simply say that the indomitable Turks changed front and advanced."

There was a hard-boiled sergeant who delighted in "picking on" the men just from civilian life. One day he was giving the commanding "right" and one of the fellows was napping and did not do as commanded, after the sergeant had called it out several times. Then the sergeant was furious and shouted to the fellow: "Hey, you, dress right!" And somebody else hollered: "How can you dress right on $30 a month?"

To clean and polish wallpaper, add two tablespoonfuls of ammonia to half a pailful of water, and wash the walls down with a flannel dipped in this. Take half a pailful of water and add two tablespoonfuls of turpentine. Wash the walls a second time with this and wipe as dry as possible.

Loose Engine Parts And Their Dangers

Heed The "Pound," Before The "Smash" Comes

RUNNING OR POUNDING UPON the part of an engine is so noticeably disagreeable to the trained motorist and indeed to any mechanically inclined operator that immediate steps are generally taken to have its cause removed, but there are some drivers, who through indifference or lack of knowledge of the consequences, put off from day to day the repairs which such symptoms indicate are necessary and tolerate "pounds" until they become unendurable or until the conditions which cause them have brought about very serious results. Foundational noises are the danger signals proclaiming that looseness exists in parts, which should be running in close contact and they result from blows dealt by one part against another. The most common examples are those of looseness in crank-shaft and connecting rod bearings, the former permitting the crank-shaft to play violently up and down in its bearings in the crank-case and the latter allowing the lower ends of the connecting rods to move relatively to their crank-pins, upon which they should run without striking or lost motion. Looseness capable of causing a pound to be struck together, under high velocity and pressure, act as hammers to batter one another's surfaces, deforming them rapidly into a state of even more pronounced looseness. Whenever two parts moved by certain forces, strike one another the stresses produced in them are immensely greater than when they merely push one another and this makes the effect of loose engine parts most destructive. The metal of the crank shaft, thus subjected to blows, tends to become fatigued and premature breakage may be the result, while the bolts that secure bearing caps in place, are prone to break under long continued pounding. When a bearing cap comes loose especially a connecting rod cap, the engine may be almost completely wrecked, for the detached rod runs wild and is very likely to punch a hole through the crank-case or break the cylinder block casting and to get in the way of one of the cranks, thus springing the crank shaft, out of line—damage which should be understood as a solemn warning, which should be acted upon at once and not put off. If this is not done, the looseness which gives rise to the noise will increase rapidly, damage already done to the parts will be greatly augmented but the most serious possibility is that parts may break loose and smash the engine.

LAMP BULB SIZES AND GEAR SHIFTING

J. R. H. asks: (1) Will it do any harm to use, in my headlights, stronger bulbs than the factory recommends? (2) What can I do to prevent that grinding noise, which occurs when shifting gears?

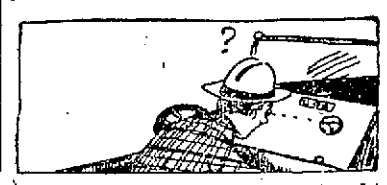

Answer: No harm of course, they will increase the drain of current from your battery. (2) Be sure that you push your clutch away out, especially when changing from a lower to a higher gear. Speed the car speed and engine speed so proportioned one to the other that the gears to be meshed are running at about the same speed before trying to force them together. Take time and be careful in shifting, feeling the gear edges to be sure conditions are correct, before using force on the lever. Don't try to engage low or reverse when the car is moving. In changing from high to second, go into neutral, let in the clutch, speed the engine slight, throw out clutch and then mesh the gears. If your car is equipped with a clutch-spring to prevent the clutch from springing, be sure that it is properly adjusted.

justed and that it produces the effect intended. Use lubricant of the right consistency in the gearbox.

AMMETER READS INCORRECTLY

T. C. asks: What caused the ammeter on my car suddenly to begin to indicate incorrectly? When the engine is stopped it now reads several amperes "charge" and the amount of current shown, when the lamps are on, is much less than it should be. Can it be fixed?

Answer: The only thing we can think of is that the instrument has suddenly been thrown out of calibration by some accident, so that it fails to indicate zero when no current is passing. The most common way in which this sort of thing happens is from the effect of a short-circuit in the wiring. This pinpoints such an immediate current to flow that it strikes the pointer violently against the stop on the "discharge" side of the instrument, permanently bending it. If the glass can be removed, you may be able to carefully bend the pointer back, so that it zeros correctly. If not, you better return the instrument for repairs.

"Robin Hood" Sheriff Brings Joy Thrills

It is doubtful if any comedy part ever played upon an American opera stage is responsible for more joy thrills than the ubiquitous short play "Robin Hood," which will be presented at the Myers theatre, Tuesday evening.

Two men, Barnabee and Andrews, have won fame in it. The jovial Barnabee helped the Bostonians to fame and Andrews has made a million people laugh in the role. His last appearance in New York at the Park theatre was a continuous ovation.

Reginald De Koven and Ralph Dunbar were not slow in perceiving the value of such operatic stars as the great parts of the De Koven Opera company and in conformity with this policy, have secured a cast for the present tour, which even surpasses the Bostonians, the best achievement in opera up to its time.

Owing to this extraordinary effort to test the operatic taste here, those attending have every reason to expect a regular metropolitan performance with all that means.

BELOIT NINE MEETS ALL STARS TOMORROW

With either Hager or Bick on the slab the All Stars will clash with the Beloit Colored Giants at Bailey's diamonds Sunday afternoon. Last year the Stars trimmed the Giants in two games, but with a strengthened line-up the colored boys will invade the city with a determination to wipe out the past defeats.

Manager Willis Scott of the Beloit nine did not announce his lineup this morning, but said that his team had been greatly bolstered by the return of several men who were in the service.

Manager Art Bick announced this morning that he would start either Hager or Bick, with the chances in favor of Hager. Wall will probably do the catching.

The Stars new uniforms have arrived and they will present a neat appearance tomorrow. Next Sunday at a considerable expense they will bring an Edgerton team to the city.

COMPLETE ALL TRACK TRY-OUTS NEXT WEEK

The preliminaries of the high school and college boys' classes championship track meet will be wound up in Tuesday's and Thursday's classes. Tuesday, the 220 yard potato race will be held and run down to the finish. The trial heats in the 500 yard run are set for Thursday and the entries for the final meet will then be posted.

It is expected these two last events will bring out some strong competition and some new entries will probably appear. The high school boys will endeavor to induce some who have not been competing to enter these events so they can strengthen their chances to cop the team laurels in the dual meet with the employed boys who are also mustering the services of stronger forces for the final events in their class.

In the employed boys' class the finals in the 500 yard run will be held Tuesday and also the standing broad jump.

The following men are to compete which will place them in the final meet and unless they are present Tuesday or Friday night they will be considered as forfeiting and their entries will be given the place. They are: F. Graesslin, Pallett, Marko, Fullerman, Graff.

MACHINERY AND TOOLS
BUILDING AND CONTRACTING
WHY THE DRICO
SILO IS BEST

1st—Can be built absolutely air-tight and can be locked securely at any time when filled.

2nd—There is no cement, stone, brick or iron which can come in contact with the ensilage in any way—nothing but wood, which is a non-conductor of heat and cold, and the acid in the ensilage acts as a preservative to the wood.

There are thirteen other reasons why the Drico is the best silo. Let us tell you what they are.

This week we illustrate a 6-room home of unusually attractive lines, with more than ordinary convenience. It is a 24-foot by 27-foot size, with living-room across the front, semi-open staircase and large fireplace.

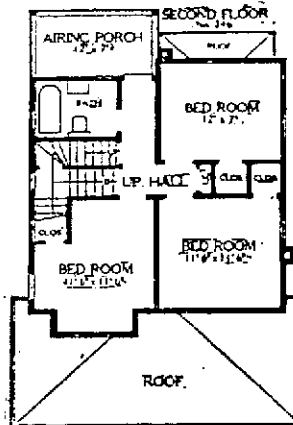

A 10-foot porch adds much to the appearance. The rear stairs will be found very convenient and the side entrance is almost as essential as the rear porch.
